“ We know that we will get through these ever-changing times the same way we always do at Seton – through prayer, commitment and the incredible support from our entire Seton community.”

KAREN KLUG WHITE '92

Dear Alumnae, Parents, Students and Friends,

The year 2020 has surely been one marked by many challenges, much uncertainty and constant change. As we head into the 2020-2021 school year, we know that we will get through these ever-changing times the same way we always do at Seton – through prayer, commitment and the incredible support from our entire Seton community.

Throughout their four years in high school, our students learn valuable life lessons both inside and outside of the classroom; and this past school year was certainly additional proof of that. The second half of the school year looked quite different than it had ever before due to the COVID-19 pandemic, and our students, faculty and staff embraced distance learning. The traditions, ceremonies and end-of-year celebrations were reinvented for the Class of 2020. You can see how we honored these very special Saints on pages 6 and 7.

Our incredible alumnae found a way to step up in a big way this past spring as Seton participated in the first-ever Girls' Schools Unite campaign. Thanks to you, we were the winners of this spirited contest among all-girls' high schools in Cincinnati. You can read more about it on page 9.

Our alums are always inspiring us with the graceful ways they embrace their gifts and make a difference in the world. You can read about Sarah Bonhaus Hellmann '95 in our cover story. Sarah started a ministry called Art for All People, and she works with marginalized people throughout the city. With her talents and passion, she brings hope and inspiration to so many.

Take a glimpse into Africa with our Biology teacher and proud alum, Allison Helmers Hinker '95, who went there as part of her in-field component of her Masters Degree. Read about how she could apply the tools of science, education and conservation and bring this experience back to the classroom on pages 16 and 17.

As we welcomed back our students to the 2020-2021 school year, we are committed to diligently working to provide our students with an exceptional Seton experience. While it may look a little different, we can assure the Seton community that the values of our faith combined with an optimal academic program can meet any challenge we face this year. Thank you for your amazing support, and please continue to keep Seton in your prayers. In the words of Elizabeth Ann Seton, "Hazard yet forward!"

Thank you!

Turning Scars into Stars

If you were to ask anyone who knows Sarah Bonhaus Hellmann '95, they would tell you that she is a graceful, shining light of hope, peace and acceptance; and that she is a gift to hundreds of people throughout Cincinnati who have been touched by her inspiring call through art to do God's will.

Sarah is the second youngest of four children to Judy Striet Bonhaus '64 and Tom Bonhaus. She and her siblings, Matt, Tom and Maria Bonhaus Meyer '97 all attended St. Antoninus and then Seton and Elder. She credits how important that well-rounded education was in helping her to grow into the person she is today. "My most formative years were spent at Seton, and I'm so grateful for the sacrifices my parents made to send me through twelve years of Catholic education."

She was very involved during her four years at Seton. She played multiple sports, took four years of art, was a member of student council and worked on the school newspaper. "My favorite classes were English, Journalism and Social Justice," Sarah said. "I can still remember the poetry Sr. Benedicta introduced to me, and she taught me to use writing as a tool for communication and empowerment. I loved learning about social justice concerns and the opportunity to think critically about current world issues."

Some of her most rewarding time at Seton was spent in art class. "Ever since I was a young girl, I always turned to the arts to feel better," she explained. "The art-making process has healing properties, and self-expression is critical for our emotional well-being. When I am creating art I feel a communion with God, and it is a spiritual practice for me." This sense of peace and healing is what Sarah tries to bring to others today through her career. She works for Hospice of Cincinnati as an art practitioner, creating art with and for patients near the end of life. "I consider it a high honor to work with people in this very sacred way."

In 2004 Sarah married Brian Hellmann, also a St. Antoninus and Elder grad, like her family members. "A true West Side love story," said Sarah. She spent many years teaching art in the classroom for grades K-12, but then felt that God was pointing her in another direction. So Sarah decided to go back to school to get her Doctorate Degree with a focus on arts-based approaches in the community. "After graduating I began my ministry, Art for All People," she explained. This ministry serves survivors of human trafficking, veterans in recovery and those affected by mental illness and addiction. "I find great joy and purpose in bringing the visual arts to those who suffer in our community," said Sarah. "The mission is to bring the arts to people who are marginalized in the community. We believe that when dealing with pain, addiction and loss there are often no words to explain the extent of suffering, and that is when the language of the arts is essential."

As it is with every journey in life, Sarah's path to where she is today was paved with struggles of her own, making her ministry and her career that much more meaningful and inspirational. More than 20 years ago she found herself in a very dark place. Without fully realizing it at the time, she was in search of hope, inspiration and God's light. "I was in my early 20s and it was late summer. I had gone four days without sleep. On the fifth day I started hallucinating," she explained. "By the grace of God I had the sense to call my mother who took me to a psychiatric hospital. It was a dark, lonely and terrifying time for me. During one of my visits from my parents, my dad wrote a message on a small piece of paper and taped it on the wall next to my bed. It said, 'Turn your scars into stars.' I didn't understand what it meant at the time, but years later it became very clear what my father was trying to communicate to me. This was the first real lesson on how to use a struggle of my own in order to serve others.”

Sarah has been living with a diagnosis of Bipolar Disorder for over 20 years. “My life is very manageable now, and I experience successes due to diligently working with psychiatrists and living a prayerful life,” she explained. Her life used to consist of extreme highs (mania) and terribly frightening lows. “During the highs I was extremely creative and energetic, and some of my best paintings were made; however, the significant downside during bouts of mania included not being able to eat, as well as racing and intrusive thoughts. I also went on shopping sprees and made a series of poor and risky decisions. After mania, the darkness would engulf me, and my lows left me numb, apathetic, hopeless and often suicidal.”

Talking about mental health issues is something that can be very difficult for people. “There is still a stigma and fear of judgement,” Sarah said. “I decided long ago to speak publicly about my mental illness because you never know how much someone might need to hear your testimony.”

Sometimes God’s graces find us at the most vulnerable times in our lives. When we are weak or in the darkest moments, there can be hope and light. When we open our hearts to Him, we see and feel that light coming through us and shining on to others. “There is power and purpose in telling our story, and it can bring about healing, hope and liberation in others,” explained Sarah. “My diagnosis does not define me, nor should anyone else be defined by one. Everyone has a battle they are fighting, and everyone suffers at some point.”

Sarah and a few of the people she works with through her ministry find strength and healing through art.

Her ministry and career are inspired by her own experiences and provide a way to bring her shining light to so many others. “All my life I have turned to the arts to heal and now I share that with others,” Sarah said. “I spend my days painting with the brokenhearted. It is an honor and a privilege to walk alongside people in their journey towards healing, and my ministry is my attempt to turn my scars into stars.”

Sarah is the author of Broken-Down Jalopies and Other Short Stories: Perspective Changes Everything.

The book is available on Amazon.

“This book is intended for anyone who believes that there are more things in life that unite us rather than divide us. If you believe in the goodness of people, you will find stories that illustrate this. If you are weary, you will find ways to identify your blessings and become a happier version of yourself. If you are willing to grow and change your perspective to become more at peace, this book is for you.”

Congratulations to the Class of 2020

Seton High School's 93rd commencement exercises looked very different this year due to COVID-19 restrictions. Over a two-day period of 24 total hours, members of the Class of 2020 had the opportunity to take part in the Senior Send-Off Weekend. Saints took part in a formal, individualized graduation in Seton's chapel, and then went on to have photo ops in designated spaces around the school. Our graduates embraced these times with grace and poise and we couldn't be more proud of them! Congratulations, Saints!

The Seton Saints are the WINNERS of the Girls' Schools Unite challenge and we have YOU to thank!

From May 4-8, 2020, Seton High School teamed up with Mercy-McAuley, Mount Notre Dame, St. Ursula and Ursuline to raise awareness and financial support for our individual schools here within Cincinnati through the Girls' Schools Unite campaign. We reached out via email, videos and social media to connect with all of our alums in order to generate energy and enthusiasm to donate to Seton's Annual Fund. Seton had the largest percentage of alumnae to donate during the particular time frame and was named the winner. Thank you! We never doubted that our incredible alumnae would come through! While it definitely feels good to be #1, it is even better to know that our united efforts will benefit current and future Saints! We were honored to be part of this campaign.

A Seton Summer Send-Off

With the school year wrapping up virtually, we wanted to send our Saints into summer with smiles and love – even if it was outside from six feet away! We had an end-of-the-year send-off for grades 9-11 where we collected students' books and tablets, cheered, waved and sent them off with a Seton cookie. We also wanted to continue to find a way to give back, so we incorporated a collection for non-perishable food items as part of the parade. The items, which filled four large cars, were delivered to the Anderson Ferry Food Pantry. Way to go, Saints!

Congratulations to the winner of the 2020 Honda Pilot Touring, Sue Habig Sena '83! Thank you to the wonderful donors of the car and for all of their incredible support of Seton. Thanks to everyone who tuned into our Facebook Live video as we drew the winning name! We were very proud of our students who worked so hard selling chances and are grateful to everyone who supported the raffle. We raised $112,000 to benefit students who attend Seton through financial aid. Thank you!!

Congratulations to Gayle Geiermann Elliott '74 who received the University of Cincinnati's Distinguished Teaching Professor award for the 2019-2020 academic school year! For the past 27 years, Gayle has directed the University of Cincinnati's International Co-op Program, or ICP. "Any honors or recognition I receive is because of the amazing students who complete over 250 hours of German, Japanese, Spanish or French language instruction and spend their last two co-op semesters working abroad, where they use second language skills to successfully work and communicate with other professionals in their field," said Gayle. Most of the students are engineers; however, they've also had students who major in architecture, design, urban planning and business. "Their motivation and commitment to succeed have made UC's ICP one of the strongest international co-op programs in the country," added Gayle. While she did not create the program, she has been responsible for it since the first group of students worked abroad in 1993. "The honor meant more to me because the nomination as well as most of the supporting documentation came from my former students, who also created an endowed scholarship in my name to help future students participate in the ICP." Gayle was also the recipient of the 2019 Donald Maclaren award that is given by the World Association for Cooperative Education bi-annually to someone who has made significant contributions to international work integrated learning. Recipients are selected from around the world, and she is only the fourth person from the United States to receive it.

00's

Jennifer Morand '12 bought her first house and started a new job at the UC Foundation working in donor relations.

Anna Stagge Braksick '13, and her husband recently moved to Charlotte, North Carolina from Denver, CO with their two-year-old, Sydney, for her husband's job. He started a company called ProjectYou, which focuses on high school, college and early career advising both professionally and personally. They are expecting another baby girl, Payton, who will be born at the end of September 2020. As a family they love to go hiking, fishing and boating, and they're excited to explore their new city.

Erika LaRosa Maurer '13 started her own business, www.bestillpotteryco.com. Erika started making pottery in her garage during the stay-at-home recommendations in the spring of 2020 due to the COVID pandemic. "I was doing pottery to find some stillness and peace during my kids' nap times, and now over the past few months the business has really taken off because of so many people in our community's support," said Erika. "My hope is that the pieces I create can be the canvas through moments of stillness that I found."

We love seeing the many ways that our alums give back to the community! It's even sweeter when they bump into each other and realize there is a Seton connection! Recently these three alums were all volunteering at the same place, St. Francis Seraph ministries at the Mother Teresa Dining Hall. The director of volunteers Teresa Diersen '93 sparked the Seton conversation by wearing her Seton Alumnae pullover; and the other dedicated daily volunteers are Karen Corry Murphy '84 and Denise Bley Lindle '83!

Congratulations to Erica Bock '16 whose feature-length movie script, HashBrown, was nominated at The Flickers' Rhode Island Film Festival, which is an Academy Award Qualifying Festival; and for winning best screenplay at the Sunny Side Up Festival in Oklahoma and the Indie Gathering Festival in Cleveland, Ohio. She was also nominated at 11 other festivals.

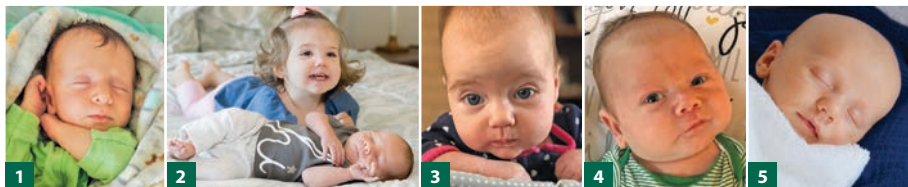

Erica studied English and Digital Media

with a focus on Screenwriting at the University of Cincinnati, and graduated in 2019. "This story is set in the 1950s," explained Erica. "It is a romantic drama about college students following their dreams, becoming their own person and living on their own for the first time. Inevitably, the characters get into trouble with mental health issues and drug abuse, and they must figure out how to overcome these obstacles." HashBrown is set to be produced in February of 2021 in Cincinnati.

In addition to several relatives who are Saints, Dorothy's granddaughters Emily Gardner Boss '10, Erin Gardner '17 and Eleanor Gardner '19 are all proud alums.

Giving Our Time and Using Our Gifts

Wherever it may be that alumnae choose to live in this world, Seton High School has prepared them to excel in life, to hear God's voice and to do God's will.

Here you can read about a Saint doing amazing things all over the world.

Alumnae Spotlight

Allison Helmers Hinker '95

Ever since Allison Helmers Hinker '95 began her Masters of Arts Degree at Miami University in 2017, she could see Africa on the horizon. Hinker, who is the Biology teacher and head of the science department here at Seton, was accepted into Miami University's Project Dragonfly, which has two programs. "Both programs have an online course-load with an in-class component. I first did the Advanced Inquiry Program, or AIP, which takes place at one of nine zoos across the country," explained Allison. "It was initiated at the Cincinnati Zoo and Botanical Garden, which is where I completed a majority of my in-class courses. The other program is the Global Field Program which is online and has a 10-day field component."

As an AIP student, Allison was able to apply to the Global Field Program for her final course work. "I had Namibia, Africa on my radar early on," said Allison. "There are 16 different in-field Earth Expeditions available and with my application I was asked to apply for my top five choices that would best match my guiding Master Plan. I was chosen for the Namibia Earth Expedition, which was my top choice. The Namibia course was a seven-credit course that ran for eight months and concluded with the in-field component."

In July 2018, Allison packed up and headed to Africa where she could apply the tools of science, education and conservation. This experience would not only help Allison become a leader in the conservation community but also enable her to bring insight and enthusiasm to her classes at Seton. The focus was predator conservation, specifically of cheetahs. Namibia has the largest population of cheetahs in the world, which is approximately 3,000.

"Project Dragonfly works with Cheetah Conservation Fund, or CCF, to educate farmers and students in Namibia. They also do rehabilitation of cheetahs. The farmers in the area, prior to being educated on the topic, would see one of their goats on their farms killed and blame a cheetah since they hunt during the day,” explained Allison.

An effective way to protect the farmers’ animals is through Anatolian Shepard Dogs because they’re good guard dogs for livestock. These dogs are trained and placed with farmers’ families. “A Shepard dog stays with the flock of livestock and they’re able to protect due to their scent and their barking,” added Allison. “The cheetahs stay away and there is no reason for the farmers to feel like they have to kill the cheetahs because their flock is now safe.”

Most of the work done during her time in Africa was spent at the CCF site. From 6:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. the group was immersed in hands-on learning and researching. “We learned about the history of the area and the complex approach to preserving cheetahs while protecting farmers,” she explained. “We were able to go out with the flocks to learn about the farms and better farming methods, and back at the site we also learned about the rehabilitation of the cheetahs,” Allison said.

“One of the days we spent at a watering hole doing a 12-hour-long animal count. We kept record of male, female, adult and youth. It was very interesting but also a little scary,” she added.

As her 10-day immersion wrapped up, Allison was able to take a few days to see more of the country. She visited Johannesburg and Krueger National Park. “It was a great way to wrap up the trip,” she said. “I have been teaching for 10 years, and this experience and ecological standpoint is a refreshing approach. I’m able to apply this field-based education in a different way within the classroom, and my students love hearing all about it.”

THIRTY-ONE WOMEN

Thirty-One Women is a unique scholarship made possible by the commitment of 30 women for one student each year. The women have been inspired by the mission of Seton High School and give one young woman the chance to attend Seton on a four-year scholarship. This young woman is chosen to become the Thirty-First Woman and is responsible for the same financial commitment as the other 30 women.
